

The Journal of Neuroscience

September 20, 2006 • Volume 26 Number 38 www.jneurosci.org

Cover Legend: A merged image taken by confocal microscopy showing the extent of infiltration (Hoechst 33258; blue), demyelination (myelin basic protein; green), and axonal loss (neurofilament 200; red) in a lesion site of the lumbar spinal cord of a Wild mouse with induced experimental autoimmune encephalomyelitis (EAE). Many axons are preserved within the EAE lesions in Wild but not wild-type mice. For details, see the article by Kaneko et al. in this issue (pages 9794–9804).

Martin, Wayne S. Sossin, and Marc Klein, which appeared on pages 8847–8856 of the August 23, 2006 issue, some lettering was inadvertently left off of Figure 6. The corrected Figure 6 is printed here.
- 9834 Erratum: In the article “Ambiguous Encoding of Stimuli by Primary Sensory Afferents Causes a Lack of Independence in the Perception of Multiple Stimulus Attributes,” by Bruce A. Carlson and Masashi Kawasaki, which appeared on pages 9173–9183 of the September 6, 2006 issue, the Figure 5 that printed was not the final version of the figure. The corrected Figure 5 and legend are printed in this issue.
- 9835 Erratum: In the article “Deciphering the Spike Train of a Sensory Neuron: Counts and Temporal Patterns in the Rat Whisker Pathway,” by Ehsan Arabzadeh, Stefano Panzeri, and Mathew E. Diamond, which appeared on pages 9216–9226 of the September 6, 2006 issue, the Figure 3 that printed was not the correct version of the figure. Some gray shading was mistakenly accentuated. The corrected Figure 3 is printed here.
- 9836 Erratum: In the article “Differential Encoding Mechanisms for Subsequent Associative Recognition and Free Recall,” by Bernhard P. Staresina and Lila Davachi, which appeared on pages 9162–9172 of the September 6, 2006 issue, some overlapping lettering was inadvertently left in the figure. The corrected Figure 4 is printed in this issue.
